Dumb Fact: Loves candy.			Oded Fehr

Abdul was born to "light up the sky" for Allah and spent his early life training for the day when he would wear his heavenly robe into a crowd of infidels. When he was a young boy, his friend tried to tell him about Jesus, but Abdul's grandmother rescued him before he could be poisoned by the infidel. When his time finally came and he exploded for his religion, Abdul was surprised to find Jesus rather than a bunch of beautiful virgins awaiting him. For rejecting Jesus and following the false prophet Mohammed, Abdul was sent to Hell.

Boisterous construction worker Charlie Connor had it all figured out. He knew that we evolved from fish, that the Bible was just a book written by a bunch of old Jews, and that when you died, that was all she wrote. Then the Grim Reaper showed up and scared Charlie so bad he fell off a girder to his death. It wasn't the end, and Charlie found himself stuck in Hell for the rest of eternity.

Darcy was a typical American teenager until the evil (and probably totally lesbo) school librarian Ms. Snow introduced her to Dungeons & Dragons, a particularly vile form of Satanism involving dice and calculus. Darcy fit in well with the group, and had a brief romantic relationship with Ms. Snow, but then Elfmoon

(also known as Debby) showed up and Ms. Snow grew tired of Darcy. It wasn't long before her character, Black Thorn, was killed by a poison needle. Unable to face life alone, Darcy took her own life. Since she had never accepted Jesus, she ended up in Hell.

Dumb Fact: In Dr. Wilmore's day, aborted baby ears were worth $75.		Ed Asner

Dr. Oswald Wilmore spent eight years in medical school learning how to kill babies and eventually opened his very own baby killing clinic. Like most abortionists, Wilmore sold the dead baby parts on the black market to make extra money. He lived to be a wealthy old man, but he was sad. When he could no longer bear his empty shell of a life, Wilmore shot himself and ended up in Hell.

Marshall James Goode was a lawman in the Old West, where he was known as one of the most honest, law-abiding men in the whole territory. He died of a rattlesnake bite on his way home from capturing and overseeing the hanging of Black Bart, a ruthless criminal. Although Marshall Goode was a force of good in the world and a protector of the innocent, he had never accepted Jesus and was therefore sentenced to an eternity in Hell.

Desdemona Snow was born into the Church of Satan, where she was trained to corrupt our nation's youth through occult role-playing games. At this point, Desdemona can't even begin to count all the children she's corrupted, babies she's sacrificed, and young women she's turned to lesbianism. However, she'll never forget the one that got away: Elfmoon. When she fell into an open manhole during a gay pride march and died, Desdemona wasn't at all surprised to find herself in Hell.

Shortly before his death (from illness), Rabbi was visited by a young man who tried to convince him that Jesus was the Messiah, and that even the Chosen People needed to accept that to get into Heaven. Although the scriptures the man showed him were convincing, the rabbi knew that if he accepted them he would be outcast by his people. Upon encountering Giant Glowing Jesus, Rabbi Waxman discovered that the man was right, and in fact had been sent by Christ to show Waxman the error of his ways. Because he did not heed the warning, Rabbi Waxman was banished to Hell. He has since developed a serious grudge against God and wants to show him what for.

Dr. Dalkins was a well-known scientist and staunch atheist in life. In fact, he was kind of a dick about it. When he was killed in a car wreck, Dr. Dalkins found himself in Hell. Since he doesn't believe in the afterlife, Dalkins has managed to convince himself that the wreck merely caused him to fall into a coma and that everything he's experienced since has just been a bizarre dream. He is so sure of his theory that the magical creatures of Heaven and Hell sometimes have trouble affecting him.
